The President's Wing. Who Sold the Whisky? A Bounty for Farmers. Bonus For Bables. What Next?

By ARTHUR BRISBANE. (Copyright, 1929, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

BASEBALL observed that President Hoover was "wild in his pitch," throwing the ball that started Washington's baseball season. Technicians said that throwing the medicine ball had "made the president a little strong on the wing." "Wings" is baseball language for "arm."

Intelligent baseball men will say to President Hoover, as the artist of old said to the ruler, annoyed at being excelled by him, "God forbid that you should know as much about this as I know." There is such a thing as knowing too much about baseball.

HENRY DE LA ESPRIELLA, now headed for the electric chair, admits killing his mother, but says, "I cannot remember killing my sister. I was too drunk."

Such a commonplace incident in this bootleg era hardly deserves a paragraph.

IT WOULD be worse than useless to ask: "What was done about the individual that sold the whisky that caused the killing of two women?"

SENATOR McNARY has invented, for farm relief, one feature that will interest Europe's producers and capitalists in the United States.

He would give farmers exporting products a bounty amounting to half of the tariff charged on such products entering the United States.

ORGANIZED capital will supply money to pay that bounty, since it has most of the money and pays the greater part of the income taxes.

Capital is accustomed to a profit from farmers. Handing them a bounty would seem strange.

PRIME MINISTER BALDWIN worried about the next election, announces a "maternity benefit" and will pay a bonus to the mother each time a baby is born.

Thus the Tories become more radical than the Labor party. A bonus for babies, and a bonus for farmers. That seems to be taking agriculture and maternity too seriously.

JAPAN continues industriously rounding up the new crop of Asiatic "reds." Local newspapers are forbidden to print the fact that 200 students were locked up in recent raids.

JAPAN has worries more serious than any "red" problem, more serious even than earthquakes. Most important is the low price of silk. Silk worms cannot compete with machines that transform wood pulp into imitation silk. Working girls in Germany wear silk dresses costing less than $3.

FLORIDA state troops are ordered to fight the fruit fly, landed here from West Africa, nobody knows how. The fly has spread over only 72 square miles and in that area

FREDERICKTOWN BRIDGE CLOSED

Between 8 a. m. and 4:40 p. m. each day next week, the iron bridge spanning Beaver creek at Fredericktown will be closed to traffic, County Surveyor Lloyd C. Kirk said today.

The bridge, too weak to permit contractors to haul heavy loads of road material over it, will be strengthened. It will require about one week for the job.

The span will be replaced by a concrete structure during the summer, but before this work is undertaken the surfacing of the Middleton township section of the East Liverpool-East Palestine road and the major portion of the section of the road in St. Clair township, will be completed.

TWO BOYS BURN TO DEATH WHEN AUTO IS FIRED

Marietta Youths are Trapped as Car Strikes Pole.

RESCUE THWARTED

Victims are Believed to Have Fallen Asleep.

MARIETTA, O., April 20.—(INS.)—Two youths, George Seever, 18, and Herald W. Williams, 18, both of Marietta, were burned to death ten miles north of here early today when the automobile in which they were riding careened from the road, struck a telephone pole and caught fire.

The young men were returning from Beverly where they had attended a dance. Their bodies were burned at most beyond recognition.

A passing bus driver saw the fire and summoned help but the heat of the blazing automobile thwarted attempts to rescue the youths.

The victims were sitting in the front seat of the car, and from the position of their bodies, it was observed they had made little attempt to leave the car, although it was not badly wrecked.

Two theories have been expressed. The first is that the youths fell asleep, and the second is that they were overcome by carbon monoxide gas while enroute here.

CANADA SEIZES AMERICAN BOAT

TORONTO, Ont., April 20.—(INS.)—The alleged seizure of a United States patrol boat and its crew of two by Canadian customs officers, today added further complications to the international tangle over the sinking of the Canadian rum-running schooner, "Im Alone," by a U. S. coast guard cutter.

Customs officers surrounded the patrol boat as it lay concealed on the Canadian side of the Niagara river waiting for rum smugglers.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—(INS.)—An added irritant to the already complicated diplomatic situation between the United States and Canada was seen by officialdom today in the seizure of a U. S. customs patrol boat by Canadian customs authorities while it was allegedly lurking on the Canadian side.

Customs authorities here today professed to have received no report on the incident, and in the absence of official advice declined to comment upon press dispatches.

Reports that the boat in question was seized by American customs agents in Canadian waters a week ago were scouted by customs authorities. They said seizures are not permitted beyond United States territory.

NAZARENE MEET CLOSES SUNDAY

Christians, who are sincere, have, by their transformation, that which is a recognizable and discernible possession, said the Rev. G. Howard Rowe, Brooklyn evangelist, at the Nazarene revival, St. Clair avenue, last night. His subject was "The Hope of His Calling."

Directed by Burl Sarks, of Seymour, Ind., a song service was held. He also sang two numbers: "The Lord Followed Me" and "When Our Work Is Done." With the hand-saw he contributed "The Beautiful Garden of Prayer."

On a subject yet to be decided upon the Rev. Mr. Rowe will preach again tonight. He will speak twice on Sunday, when the campaign will close. His morning theme will be: "Cross And Crown" and that of the evening, "The Calamity of the Soul."

BECK BILL DEAD

State Executive Also Blue-pencils Mardis Proposal.

COLUMBUS, O., April 20.—(INS.)—By vetoing two house bills and approving 38 other legislative enactments today, Gov. Myers E. Cooper had disposed of 79 measures within the past 24 hours. The governor approved 39 measures late yesterday.

Governor Cooper vetoed the Beck bill, providing that the salary and wages of regular employees of a municipality, engaged in work on public improvements, part of the cost of which may be assessed against specially benefited real estate, should be made a part of the actual cost of such improvements.

The governor, also, blue-pencilled the Mardis bill providing for purchase by the state, for $6,500, of a private compilation relating to "land titles in Ohio," and for the printing and binding of 2,000 copies at an additional cost to the state of $11,000.

Ehrlich Bill Signed. The governor's approving signature was attached to the following bills:

The Ehrlich bill, amending the Freeman-Collister act regulating the operation of motor buses and trucks. This bill enlarges the scope of the act so as to require additional corporations, companies, firms and individuals to obtain licenses from the state utilities commission before operating trucks or buses for business purposes. The bill does not apply to farmers or other "casual haulers."

The Forney bill, requires all motor vehicles to stop before passing school buses which are loading or unloading children.

Other Measures Approved. Other measures approved by the governor follow:

The Norton bill, permitting war memorial commissions to cooperate with non-profit making museums.

The Ross bill, increasing the penalties imposed upon persons convicted of furnishing intoxicating liquors to minors from $100 and 30 days imprisonment to a maximum $5,000 fine and imprisonment of from one to five years.

RUINS SEARCHED

Firemen Fear Toll of Crash Will Mount.

NEW YORK, April 20.—(INS.)—Four were killed and six were injured today when a scaffold collapsed on a building being constructed by the Western Union at West Broadway and Worth streets. It is believed all the killed and injured were workmen.

The dead and injured were among about a score who were working on a seventh-floor scaffold. A giant girder being hoisted into place ten stories up tore loose and dropped, carrying the scaffold and the workmen to the street in a mass of tangled wreckage.

The first reports said more than a dozen had been killed. As a result ambulances from all nearby hospitals rushed to the scene. Police Commissioner Whalen also went direct to the accident and took personal charge.

It was more than an hour after the accident before all the workmen could be accounted for. Several, according to uninjured workers, were thought to have been buried in the debris. Firemen were digging frantically in the wreckage in search of possible additional injured or dead.

Drive this Car

PUT IT TO THESE ELEVEN TESTS

The only true test of performance is personal experience. Take a trial drive in an Oldsmobile and find out for yourself, not only what it does, but how it does it. Match it against other cars and make comparisons. Give it these eleven tests... or any others... and check results by any standard of performance you care to set.

1. TEST EASE OF CONTROL
 When you relax in the driver's seat, notice its comfort—the convenient arrangement of controls and dash instruments. Try the new Fisher adjustable front seat. Oldsmobile's adjustable steering wheel adds to your comfort. Step on the starter and note its prompt engagement. Test the easy action of the clutch—the silent, easily-meshed gear-shift.

2. TEST GETAWAY
 Observe how easily and smoothly Oldsmobile gets away from the curb—how easy it is to steer. Pull up to a stoplight. Then dash ahead when the signal says "Go." Measure Oldsmobile's swift, seamless pick-up in all gears.

3. TEST HANDLING EASE
 Drive through thickest traffic. Learn how Oldsmobile's instant response to accelerator, brakes, and steering wheel simplifies city driving. At any speed, in traffic or on the road, Oldsmobile is easy to handle and restful to drive.

4. TEST SMOOTHNESS
 Drive Oldsmobile out on the open road. Cover the face of the speedometer with glove or handkerchief... take your accustomed bearing pace... then note the speedometer reading... you will be astonished to find how fast you are traveling.

5. TEST RIDING COMFORT
 Oldsmobile seats are wide and deep-cushioned. Interiors are roomy and restful. Four Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers function in harmony with Oldsmobile's special alloy-steel springs to smooth out all road irregularities. Drive this finer Oldsmobile over choppy pavements, over ruts and bumps. Whether you take them at high speeds or slow, you'll find that all roads ride comfortably in an Oldsmobile.

6. TEST ACCELERATION IN HIGH GEAR
 When you pass other cars on the road, mark Oldsmobile's quick response to the throttle in all speed ranges—the smooth, effortless surge of power that enables you to surge into the lead easily and surely.

7. TEST SPEED
 Seek a straight, level stretch of highway and give Oldsmobile its head. You'll thrill to speed for higher than the average motorist ever uses. Yet you'll feel secure, perfectly relaxed—for Oldsmobile speed is as restful as it is exhilarating.

8. TEST HILL-CLIMBING ABILITY
 Load Oldsmobile up the longest, steepest hill you know. Start at the bottom at ordinary speeds. You'll find the tremendous power reserve in Oldsmobile's big 62-horsepower engine gives it wonderful hill-climbing ability. If it's power you want, you can't match this Oldsmobile at its own lower price.

9. TEST ROADABILITY
 One of the greatest joys in driving this finer Oldsmobile results from its splendid roadability. A low center of gravity, balanced weight, and four Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers all are contributing factors in Oldsmobile's ability to hug the road at any speed.

10. TEST THE BRAKES
 Check Oldsmobile's braking system for ability. Oldsmobile's four-wheel safety brakes not only are exceptionally efficient, but are smooth, quiet, and easy to operate as well.

11. TEST PARKING EASE
 Deliberately select a small space at the curb and park this Oldsmobile. Finger-tip steering and a short turning radius make it easy to slip into small parking places. The easy clutch, brake, and gear-shift action allows you to take full advantage of every inch of space.

These eleven tests will give you a comprehensive idea of all phases of Oldsmobile's performance. They also afford an excellent basis of comparison with other cars. Thousands of motorists who have given Oldsmobile these and other tests have made it the car of their choice. Come, drive this car and judge it, at its own lower price, by your own standards of performance and value.

The Sense of Discernment

more commonly known as tact is something that is absolutely essential in the proper conducting of the last services. To perceive and understand a situation immediately, and to be ready with the proper course of action; that is real tact.

A delicate sense of perception, backed by good judgment and understanding; these things we have tried to incorporate in our service.

Playground Tag Day

No small factor in reducing the automobile death toll in Ohio and elsewhere is the supervised play movement, which keeps children off the streets. This reason, not to mention the importance of recreation centers in encouraging wholesome outdoor exercise, should prompt whole-hearted support of Playground Tag day which will be observed in East Liverpool next Saturday.

Representatives of the City Federation of Women's clubs, sponsors of the playground movement here, and high school girls, directed by Mrs. M. R. Malkin, will sell tags on the streets in a campaign to raise funds to meet the cost of operating the downtown recreation center during June, July and August.

Funds are needed to pay salaries of a supervisor and assistant, who will direct athletics, hikes, etc., as well as to meet the cost of additional equipment which will be required.

The importance of the movement is attested by Mrs.
Aida de Oostza Breckenridge, national chairman of Child Health day, which this year will also be National Play day, and will be observed on May 1. As Mrs.
Breckenridge says, the aim of school authorities, club women and service organizations interested in boys and girls is to stress recreation as a special health note.

Clothes.

It's a peculiar thing about clothes. Way back in the days when all women looked like circus tents, or totem poles, no matter what their real characteristics happened to be, and the man appealed to the world's sense of values with anatomical displays made possible by knee breeches and silk hose, it was suggested that "clothes made the man." No doubt, they unmade many men, too, unless there was more male pulchritude extant in the nineteenth century than there is in the twentieth.

The modern male has the clothing situation by the short hair, so to speak. He has designed his garments to conceal, with merciful drapes, those parts of his body inclined toward geometrical design and has padded other portions tending to strengthen observers' impressions of manhood. He has protected himself from cold by woolen hosiery, spats, long overcoats, fleeced gloves and long warm trousers.

All this has been done to the end that it is generally agreed that man's clothing, now, is just about at the peak of efficiency and no change is foreseen until nature and time conspire to form new angles, new curves and lumps.

It is the women who have held the bag in the random development of the curse for which Eve was partly responsible. Their clothing has evolved into a summer time, Elysian field proposition. They have been adapted to but one season—summer. Whereas, the husband changes to silk and cotton when warm weather comes, the wife retains her winter habiliments and is for the first time comfortable. Beautiful as the sight of silk-clad ankles and pecking knees may be, there is something of the eerie about the sight of those supporting members in the middle of winter. It just isn't natural;
it is contrary to the laws of heat and cold, contraction and expansion, and all other laws except those vague laws of the emotions.

Now that summer is finally almost here, the women as if further to support the private opinions entertained concerning their good sense, appear with furs. It's their privilege, but a man couldn't get away with it. It is really marvelous that woolen socks don't get popular, but things that have gone to the other extreme and they wear no stockings at all.

River Transportation

All-year-round navigation on the Ohio river has just become an accomplished fact. There is still some work to be done on the four dams at the lower end of the river, but the stream can now be traversed by steam boats even in periods of the lowest water, engineers say.
The dream that began back in the '80s is about to be realized.

It was in 1885 that the first dam in the lock system that was to canalize the Ohio from Pittsburgh to Cairo, was built up, at Davis Island, near Pittsburgh. The eighth, ninth, tenth and eleventh dams of the important system are built in the East Liverpool and Steubenville districts, and now it is planned to further improve the lock system in the upper stretches by elimination of every other dam or so for a specified stretch along the river. A five million dollar dam, it is reported will be built above New Cumberland, and it will be one of the two largest dams on the river.

This will mean less lockings-through and faster transportation, making the most of the river as a traffic artery.

The transportation that must come is the barge traffic which moves millions of dollars worth of steel from the Ruhr valley of America to the south which is rapidly becoming industrialized, or to southern ports where the products are shipped to those South American countries which are showing industrial expansion.

East Liverpool district is rediscovering the river with intense interest. The barge and boat-building industry is being revived in the upper Ohio district. The increase in river tonnage is remarkable, mainly because of the steel shipments. It has tripled in less than six years, and it is generally predicted that the tonnage on the Ohio river in the first year following completion of canalization will reach 30 million. It is now about 12 million.

That shows the trend. Now there is needed, it is claimed, private enterprise to come in with barge service or else government establishment of the service to encourage private enterprise; and the development of river and rail terminals. Confidence is expressed, however, in private enterprise being active in both fields. Municipalities should do more than toy with the river-rail terminal idea.

HASKIN DAILY LETTER

By Frederick J. Haskin

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 20.—Every year the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce issues a report based on a careful following of the progress of the German chemical industry during the preceding twelve months. Such a report has just been completed and shows that any expectation that the war and the post-war shackles would permanently break the German chemical position was not well founded. The bureau finds that Germany has now regained her pre-war output of chemicals and is continually expanding that industry.

The bureau also finds, however, that the war brought about a series of circumstances which has raised the United States to a position where the German-American positions are almost reversed in some particulars. Prior to 1914 not only the United States but England and other large industrial nations were dependent upon Germany for certain chemicals. Pressure of the war gave birth to gigantic chemical enterprises here and also in England and France.

The population of the world is increasing at a rate never before dreamed of and the wealth of the world also is increasing in accelerating ratio. The standard of living everywhere is raised. Chemical engineering has brought new substances and processes into being and there is a vastly greater market for chemicals than there was fifteen or so years ago. This, then, means that although Germany has regained her pre-war output of chemicals, she has not recaptured her pre-war dominance.
The market for chemicals has increased so notably that there has developed a demand which keeps busy whole new chemical enterprises. This additional demand is being met by the United States in large measure.

During the last year exports of German chemicals amounted to $310,000,000 in addition to her large internal consumption. Nevertheless, the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce estimates that this huge production is not greater than that of the chemical production of the three states of New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania. The United States now has become the largest producer of chemicals in the world with Germany in second place.

The German industry is in excellent shape, according to this latest report. Although since 1924 American loans to Germany industries have amounted to $1,753,- 000,000, not counting $110,000,000 in a Dawes Plan loan, very little of this money was required by the chemical industries. The last year has seen increased dividends paid by some companies and entrance into the dividend-paying class of others.

During the last year German chemical interests have been pursuing a policy which may have the effect of ultimately restoring to Germany world dominance in chemicals so far as peace-time operations are concerned. That policy has been the acquisition of stock in foreign companies and the making of point trading agreement with them. In this manner the German companies have obtained participation in control and in profits of chemical companies in the United States, England, France, Norway, Switzerland, and other countries.

Obviously, in time of war this control would not be operative unless it could be conceived that all such countries should be allied with Germany, for the plants are located in the several countries. But, in peace-time, the dividends paid by an American, British, or other foreign country to Germany strengthen her foreign exchange position and aid her in the discharge of reparation obligations.

Participation by German chemical companies has been arranged in American companies engaged in oil cracking, explosives manufacture, the rayon industry, and a process for giving a wood grain to metal surfaces. German interests have a 50 per cent interest in a New York chemical company producing photo-chemicals.

The relation of this to the reparations is seen in the fact that the German chemical companies pay to the German Reich a tax of 20 per cent on net profits. That means that out of every dividend paid by an American chemical plant to a German stockholding company, one-fifth goes to the German government.

Through this penetration of foreign chemical companies, according to one estimate, German chemical interests control already 70 per cent of the world output.
The bureau advances this only as an estimate and, obviously, in time of war the advantage would be lost.

Another aspect of the German-American chemical situation is the reversal of certain trade trends. Before the war our chemical trade with Germany consisted almost entirely of exports from Germany to this country.
Now, however, we have developed a market there and actually sell where formerly we were only buyers. German imports of chemicals last year amounted to $125,- 000,000. A large proportion of these imports come from the United States.

Chief American exports of chemicals to Germany are naval stores, sulphur, phosphate rock, borax, benzene, and carbon black. These, it will be noted, are raw materials which the Germans use in various chemical manufactures. The German imports of American benzene are especially notable, having risen in three or four years from almost nothing to substantial proportions.
This is due to the increased motorization in Germany.
The Germans have perfected a motor fuel composed of a mixture of gasoline, which is high-priced, and benzene and the increasing use of automobiles has brought about enhanced demand just as the demand for gasoline annually leaps upward here.

NEW YORK Day By Day

By O. O. McIntyre.

NEW YORK, April 20.—On the sidewalk of a block in West 70th street there will be found almost every day in the year one or two persons of a group gazing across the street at a sedate, three-story house, numbered 244. It was the scene of one of New York's most mystifying murders.

Although the crime took place about 10 years ago and other equally puzzling murders have been committed and forgotten, this one continues to grip public interest. No. 244 was the home of Joseph E. Elwell, the famous bridge expert, found dying with a bullet hole in his head in his living room.

It was a crime of passion that un-derlaid low scandal in high society.
Elwell, it developed, was the Casanova of his period and his home was a seraglio. There was found among his effects a list of 53 women—indexed with their pet names—who flitted in and out his bacchanalian bower.

On the night before his death, Elwell, who was 45, divorced, wore a toupee and had false teeth, was at a gay dinner party with a beautiful society girl who had been divorced that day. It so happened her ex-husband came into the cafe with another lady and later also sat near the Elwell party at the Midnight Frolic.

It was also brought out the society girl and Elwell quarreled and she went home alone in a huff and she telephoned him around 4 on the morning of his killing. But the divorced lady and her husband proved perfect alibis.
I saw her recently, the manageress of a Paris dressmaking house.

Elwell was the gold digger's delight.
A lengthy list of women received a "monthly love pension." His bridge activities also gave him a wide circle of acquaintances. All were questioned, and those intimately involved were under long espionage. Some are watched to this day.

No tangible clue was ever found.
The warmest trail had a penny-dreadful thrill. In his mail was a letter from an abandoned girl in a Kentucky village. She besought protection. Elwell was killed with a 45 caliber revolver. An avenging Kentucky father would likely use such a gun to vindicate family honor!

Food prices, at least on the lower

East Side, are tumbling. Near Delancy street a window card proclaims: Pork sausage—8 cents; toast—2 cents; coffee with cream—4 cents; hot cakes and syrup—11 cents. O, yes, napkin service—25 cents.

One rarely sees the true Broadway-ite until after midnight. Between 8 and 12, the street is thronged with visiting Elks. After 12, the Broadway-ite arrives, and it's his alley. And so far as I'm concerned he can have it—with love and kisses. The evening boil has achieved the hard-boiled eggs by midnight.

Broadway becomes top heavy with worldliness. In the chop houses are these: "Say, Lissen!" conversationalists who know all and tell more than that. The gents with nicotine-stained fingers are feverishly turning raffles from pages and gulping black coffee.

Glittering ladies lurch from cafe tables to telephone booths, inquire for mysterious numbers and ask if Al is there. Strange shifting creatures, wetting their lips, drift in and out like wraiths. The befuddled jag who missed the 12:13 to suburbia is spilling tapoca all over his vest.

The gambler awaits the tip-off for the high play crap game that breaks with dawn. There are the hybrids with mingling steps and loose wrists and the sure thing boy looking for a break. And through it all sit those gentle silver-haired night cashiers, perhaps reading Thackeray. And dreaming.

Montague Glass after an evening of patiently autographing the Dutch Theatrical Club's year book at the annual dinner recently, gravely secured the autographs of the three waiters at his table and went on home.

On lower Broadway is a famous restaurant known the world over for its goose. The ceremonial in serving suggests each goose is the original that squawked and saved Rome. Not being tipped off to the piece de resistance, it would be my blunder to order ham and eggs. However, it is only fair to report I am the bright boy who thought up ordering a frankfurter in Frankfurt one day.

Once Overs

The One-Track Mind.
You know persons who seem to be failures in many ways but who can do some certain one thing so well that they command large incomes.
You yourself do many things in a creditable way, you think that you are more than ordinarily intelligent, in fact, you feel superior to many.
But if with all your gifts and intelligence you cannot earn half as much as they do, are they not more of a success than you are?
There are different forms of intelligence.
It is one thing to be intelligent, but quite another to put something over successfully as a result of your intelligence.
You are capable in one line and not in others and there are others who could not do the things that earn your salary, but neither could you fill their place so acceptably.

Because a person is not so well versed as you on many subjects don't think too lightly of his ability, for he might surprise you.

It may be necessary for you to do many things to earn a large enough sum to keep you, but one you consider inferior does one thing so well he gets a great deal more than you, with all your knowledge.

Don't belittle the "one-track mind" for it is often a top-notch success for its possessor.

YOUR HEALTH

An Ounce of Prevention Is Worth A Pound of Cure.

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland.

If you permit yourself to grow old it is to a great extent your own fault.
There are causes for old age that you cannot control, but in many instances it is possible to escape the usual signs of age.

To sit down, reconciled to be an old man or an old lady, is the surest sign that you are old. Don't permit yourself to do this. Never admit, even to yourself, that you are old.

To lose interest in life is bad for you. You must have contact with going concerns, you must talk with your friends and be eager to hear the latest news. If you permit yourself to get out of step with your surroundings,
you are really old.

To men and women who have worked hard all their lives, it seems wonderful to think of the day of retirement. "To lay down the fiddle and the bow," is sweet in prospect. Mr.
Coolidge said once he intended to take a year "just to whittle."

But there is nothing so boring as nothing so wearing, nothing so age-producing, as idleness. Because you think you are old, you retire from business and, by doing so, you guarantee for yourself speedy rest in the grave.

A body and mind set to work cannot loaf without inviting disaster. The rest of idleness will quickly destroy what activity could not damage.

Through my whole life it has been a hobby of mine to watch business men who "retire." They picture for themselves years of play and fishing and loafing. What do they get?
About six months of life. Then they die of some acute ailment that would have amounted to nothing had there been some incentive to get well.

"DUMMY" OPENS RUN ON MONDAY

A sparkling, thrilling, laughable comedy melodrama, "The Dummy," featuring the delightful stage and screen star, Ruth Chatterton, will be the attraction at the Ceramic theater for the three days of the week, starting Monday. "The Dummy" is Paramount's latest all-talking offering and is reported to be one of the best of its kind presented to date.

Smart, smoothly-moving dialogue is recorded with all the perfection that patrons of the Ceramic theater have come to expect in the Paramount all-talking pictures. The action of the piece lends itself admirably to newly developed treatment and the picture is a succession of thrills and laughs from start to finish.

An excellent cast of stage-trained stars enact this comedy melodrama. Ruth Chatterton, who was one of the leading stage stars before she became associated with Emil Jennings in his recent success, "Sins of the Fathers," has proved her ability in talking moving pictures in Paramount's "The Doctor's Secret." Fredric March, who played in the stage success, "The Royal Family," when he was induced to accept an important role in "The Dummy," John Cromwell, famous actor, director and producer of stage plays, who will shortly turn to directing sound pictures for Paramount, is also in the cast.

The story of "The Dummy" deals with a group of kidnapers and a smart office boy who outwits them by playing deaf and dumb. It is well handled, Robert Milton being responsible for the direction.

"COHENS, KELLYS" ON STATE SCREEN

The ever popular screen comedy team, Cohen and Kelly, have broken out into noise, dialogue, arguments and repartee, as will be heard here when "The Cohens and Kellys in Atlantic City" is shown at the State theater beginning Monday. George Sidney is again the featured star in the latest of this laughable Universal series. Vera Gordon, Mack Swain and Kate Price play the other featured roles, while Nora Lane and Cornelius Keefe have the romantic roles. William J. Craft directed the picture, much of which actually was taken at Atlantic City.

All of the principals are popular screen figures with long stage experience. Their dialogue is well delivered and their voices pleasing. Sidney especially, remembered as a leading stage comedian of a decade and more ago, is in his element in talking pictures.

The squabbles of the business partners, Cohen and Kelly, and their wives, makes hilarious comedy unusually suited to talk-film presentation. In this picture they are in the bathing suit business. How they stage a $10,000 bathing beauty contest at Atlantic City against their will, makes an interesting story, full of funny situations.

"WEARY RIVER" AT AMERICAN

Although television is still a thing of the future as far as the public is concerned, a combination of motion pictures and the radio is presented for their approval in the forthcoming Richard Barthelmess feature, "Weary River," which First National offers at the American theater next week.

In "Weary River" the hero is shown singing over a radio, and the audience will see him and hear him. The radio plays an important part in the unfoldment of the story and the newest developments in sound and dialogue synchronization make it possible to present this innovation in "Weary River."

The story of "Weary River" relates the sentimental and romantic story of Jerry Larabee, a singing convict whose radio broadcasting from prison wins him a parole, a new chance at life, fame that takes him to the stage and the love of the girl who stood by him in the hour of direst need.

It was directed by Frank Lloyd from a short story by Courtney Ryley Cooper and was adapted by Bradley King. The leading feminine role is played by Betty Compson and the cast includes William Holden, Louis Nathaux, George Stone, Raymond Turner and others.

Germany produced 221 motion picture films at an approximate cost of $11,000,000 last year.

It eases the dryness and irritation, stops nervous hacking, loosens and raises phlegm. No opiates to cause constipation. Exactly suits elderly people. Ask for it. Carnahan's 3 Drug Stores.—Adv.

CROW CHIEFTAIN WITH 101 RANCH

Chief Red Feather is head of the Crow Indians with the 101 Ranch Wild West, which comes to East Liverpool Monday, May 6, for two performances, afternoon and night, at Columbian park. He arrived home from abroad the other day. He had been with the Circus Krone on the continent. Returning, he spent a few days in London, where a Coldstream Guards officer presented him with a swaggar stick. Red Feather is now the howlingest swell among the Sioux, Cheyenne, Crow and Apache warriors with the show, but they resent this somewhat. Turkey Legs, chief of Cheyennes, sniffs, "Red Feather wear riding pants next!"

TWO UNHURT AS BRIDGE FALLS

Motor Vehicles Topple
Into River at Wapakoneta.

WAPAKONETA, O., April 20.—(INS).—Recovering from slight injuries, two men were today recounting their narrow escapes from death yesterday, when a section of an old steel bridge on the Dixie highway, spanning the Auglaize river, collapsed as they were passing over it.

Fred Rabe, 50, New Bremen, O., and Paul Shreve, 24, of Lima, dropped about 30 feet with the bridge flooring, when the structure fell into the shallow river below. Rabe was driving a pleasure car and Shreve was behind the wheel of a truck. Both machines toppled sideways into the water after the wreckage came to a stop on the bottom of the river.

Traffic was at its height, when the bridge, built about 50 years ago and about 200 feet long, broke near the middle, half of it falling under the weight of the moving cars.

ARTHUR HAND MAY GO FREE

Jury in Toledo Bank
Robbery Trial
Disagrees.

BUENOS, O., April 20.—Arthur Hand, Toledo, who stood trial here during the last week for alleged complicity in the $175,000 Galion bank robbery, may go free, according to indications here today.

The jury in his second trial reported Thursday night that it was unable to agree, and was discharged by Judge J. Walter Wright. It had deliberated nine hours and fifteen minutes.

A similar result was obtained at Hand's first trial. Prosecutor J. D. Sears indicated today that he may ask the court to nolle the indictment rather than try Hand a third time.

Wilbur Hand, a brother of Arthur, and Harry Zillick, Toledo, have been convicted on the same charges and are now serving a term in the state penitentiary.

One of the features of Hand's second trial was when he pleaded his own case before the jury, as did George Remus, famous Cincinnati wife-slayer. In both instances, the step proved profitable to the defendants.

Lord Northcliffe's Brother Dies.

Electric Operation Proposed By Pennsy

New Method is Suggested on Cleveland Division With Power Plant at Alliance; Project Would Involve Large Sum.

WELLSVILLE, O., April 20.—Electricification of the Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburgh including the Cleveland and the Pittsburgh divisions and Youngstown branch, is on the expansion program of the Pennsylvania railroad for the immediate future.

While no official announcement has been made, it is understood that the program is being held up pending the completion of the electrification of the Philadelphia-New York division and a check on results there.

That one of the important power units would be located near Alliance, seems highly probable. Alliance is the half-way point between Cleveland and Pittsburgh. It is the junction of three important lines, the Ft. Wayne, The Cleveland-Pittsburgh and the Youngstown divisions and hence is ideally located to serve the three lines.

Expansion Program.
The expansion program as planned by the Pennsylvania is not a new idea. Fourteen years ago the improvement was being given serious consideration. The World war forced a rigid economy program upon the railroads and the reconstruction period immediately following the war was not calculated to stimulate any expansion program.

That an electrically operated line would result in greater efficiency and economy has been contended by many railroad executives for many years but the financing of the installation during the war and immediately following was too difficult.

Gasoline Engines Proposed.
The use of gasoline-driven engines for local passenger service pending the electrification of the lines is also a possibility. This method of power is being given a trial on the Wheeling and Lake Erie, out of Cleveland and if satisfactory may be used extensively.

The expansion program of the Pennsylvania for the Cleveland and Pittsburgh division is said to involve an expenditure of approximately $30,000,000 and would include the rebuilding of the entire roadbed. That important changes would be made in the Alliance district which would include important grade changes is certain.

NEW YORK, Apr. 20.—Stocks of the Steel, Oil, Amusement and Manufacturing companies pushed forward aggressively in a dull and featureless weekend market today. A break in Hupp motors to the year's lowest price of 52 unsettled the motor stocks, and buying demand in that section of the market fell off, but the forward movements in Bethlehem steel, Montgomery Ward and other favorites, which started earlier in the week, carried prices of a dozen or more of the favorites to the highest levels of the month.

ONE KILLED, ONE DYING IN BLAST

ATHENS, O., April 20.—(INS.)—Frank Price, 25, died today and Flore Burson, 17, is dying as the result of an explosion which occurred after a match had been struck in the gas-filled kitchen of a vacant house which they were inspecting yesterday with C. E. Starr, 68, owner of the premises and former city councilman.

Starr suffered burns of a minor nature.

Price, who is said to be a cousin of Miss Burson, was a truck driver and he was to move the Burson family's household goods into the house. Brioni Isle Sees Meeting of Ex-Champ and Author

JAMES J. TUNNEY

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW

Pugilist and Author Have Many Things to Talk Over.

"So you didn't like 'Cashel Byron's Profession,' Mr. Tunney?"

Thus George Bernard Shaw may address James Joseph Tunney if they meet on the island of Brioni, in the North Adriatic, where both celebs are spending a few days.

Many sparkling discussions are believed possible, inasmuch as they have expressed a mutual desire to talk with each other. Tunney really an enigma to American fight fans, has the sort of mind that Shaw would find much delight in classifying. By the same token, Shaw, the playwright, seems to have reached that mental plane toward which the mighty Gene is making rapid strides.

The possibility of their wives, Mrs. Shaw and the former Polly Lauder, finding each other congenial offers another interesting angle which gives rise to many conjectures.

Many unexpected things have happened in this world of ours, but what could be more fantastic than Tunney and Shaw becoming friends. Yet, just such a thing is possible and some persons believe not at all remote. It all depends on how they "click" if they do meet.

Excursion Steamer Homer Smith Will Be Renamed.

OVERHAUL CRAFT

Coal is Shipped to Weirton and Wheeling.

The Ohio river, falling despite last night's rain, had reached a stage of 18 feet at Dam No. 8 at noon today.

The steamer Betsy Ann arrived here tonight, enroute to Cincinnati from Pittsburgh. The Liberty is due here from Wheeling, W. Va. The Senator Cordill will arrive late tomorrow afternoon from Cincinnati.

The Duquesne, without a tow, passed here yesterday for Louisville, Ky. The LaBelle, with seven empties, the Old Reliable with one barge of creosote, and the J. H. Hillman, with five empty barges, passed here yesterday for Pittsburgh. The Transporter passed here for Wheeling, W. Va., with a tow of eight barges of coal, while three barges of coal were towed to Weirton, W. Va., by the Hillman.

Rodgers Buys Steamer. The excursion steamer Homer Smith will return to the Pittsburgh harbor, it was officially stated yesterday. This steamer, the largest in the upper Ohio valley, has been purchased by a party of Pittsburghers led by Captain William B. Rodgers, president of the Rodgers Sand company and president of the Allegheny River Improvement association.

The steamer will be overhauled, renamed and will enter the Pittsburgh excursion trade early in June. In announcing the purchase Captain Rodgers, himself an ardent river enthusiast, said that it was his intention to make the people of Pittsburgh "water-minded," to instill a love for the rivers into the average public and for their education.

The steamer, which for more than 10 years has made Pittsburgh its home port, was more or less a Pittsburgh institution with the exception that its winter quarters were in the mouth of the Kanawha river. With the purchase of the big steamer, Captain Rodgers said that it will be placed under a new management and will cater to the interests of Pittsburgh and its civic bodies. No name has as yet been selected for the steamer.

Duquesne to Be Overhauled. The steamer Duquesne of the Elsey River Transportation company with Captain Phil C. Elsey, president of the concern at the wheel, left the Pittsburgh harbor yesterday for Madison, Ind., to undergo the purchase of the big steamer, Captain Rodgers said that it will be placed under a new management and will cater to the interests of Pittsburgh and its civic bodies. No name has as yet been selected for the steamer.

Lieutenant H. J. Casey accompanied by Theodore A. Rehbeck, professor of hydraulics of the University of Karlsruhe, Germany, and R. H. Thomas, professor of hydraulics of the Carnegie Tech yesterday made an inspection of the locks at Casworth and Deadmans, Ohio river.

James Rankin and Thomas Cocaine of the Vesta Coal company returned yesterday from a trip to Mobile and New Orleans, where they made an inspection of Diesel boats. They were the guests of Captain Slack Barrett on his steamer the Patricia Barrett.

Boat Back in Home Port.

The steamer Morgan Davis, which has been engaged in the vicinity of Paducah, will return to the Pittsburgh harbor to enter the towing trade. H. G. Davis of the firm of Morgan & Davis, dock repair yards, has been issued a patent on a stern wheel, which he claims will revolutionize steamboating. The buckets are diamond shaped, constructed of steel plates and wooden arms and run diagonally with the wheel. It is claimed to be 50 per cent more efficient than existing wheels, will eliminate vibrations and the lifting of water with a corresponding decrease in construction. Local concerns are interested and are considering its installation on a number of their boats running in the Pittsburgh harbor.

The steamer A. C. Ingersoll, of the American Barge Line, will arrive in the Pittsburgh harbor today and will leave Monday with a tow of steel products for Memphis and New Orleans.

Court Cuts $50 from Verdict.
When a motion for a new trial was heard in the case of Charles E. Smith against W. B. Cope, the court ruled that a verdict for $350 returned by a jury on last March 22 was excessive and that unless the plaintiff agreed to remit $50 a new trial would be granted. This was agreed to and the court entered a judgment on the verdict.

In this case the plaintiff sued to recover $10,000 damages as a result of an automobile wreck.

FIVE DIVORCE CASES HEARD

A new motion to modify a divorce decree in a case tried before the late Judge James G. Moore, Dec. 9, 1921, was heard by Judge W. F. Jones, and the cause passed. This was the case of Albert Bowersock against his wife, Katie M. Bowersock, the petition being filed Aug. 18, 1921. A decree was granted the plaintiff Dec. 9, 1921, and the custody of children was divided. A motion filed Feb. 12, 1923 to modify the former order of the court, was overruled.

On the grounds of gross neglect of duty, Mrs. Georgia M. Crew has been divorced from her husband, Orris D. Crew. The plaintiff has been restored to her maiden name, Georgia Mercer. Wilful absence over a period of three years was set up in the divorce petition filed by Thomas Menice against his wife Nora Menice, and a decree was granted the plaintiff.

Annie DeVall has been divorced from her husband, Rescoe DeVall, on the grounds of gross neglect of duty. She has been restored to her maiden name, Annie Nelson.

On the grounds of gross neglect of duty, Robert G. Farish has been divorced from his wife, Anna Myrtle Farish, both minors.

Wilful absence for three years was the ground upon which Harry Sherlock was divorced from his wife, Oda Sherlock.

Mrs. Loretta Hester, Devoid of Strength and Completely Exhausted, Had Given Up Hope of Ever Seeing a Well Day Again.

From Chester, near East Liverpool, O., comes a message of hope to women. Mrs. Loretta Hester, of Sixth St., Chester, W. Va., sends in this happy report that other women suffering as she did might benefit by it. She says: "Before taking a course of this wonderful 'ORANGE ROOT' Iron & Celery Compound, I was in a complete state of exhaustion. I had no blood, my circulation was bad, and I could not lie down to sleep at night due to a dreadful feeling of fatigue. In fact, I was too tired to go to sleep. I had absolutely no strength at all, and just dragged about day in and day out, like one half dead. I had no appetite, and could not eat anything of a solid nature, lest it cause an awful attack of indigestion. My nerves were shattered, and I was restless and fidgety all the time. I tried many so-called tonics, but nothing ever did me any good till I started taking ORANGE ROOT. It surely was a red letter day for me when I began taking it, for since taking 3 bottles of it and a few of those Golden Nuggets, I feel, look and act like a different woman. It surely how quickly my strength returned, and a feeling of exhilaration spread all over my system. I can work hard all day long now, and never feel the least bit tired. I sleep soundly at night, and get up in the mornings feeling rested and refreshed and ready for the day's work. My appetite is keen, and I can eat anything without fear of any distressing after effects. My circulation has been restored to normal, and my hands and feet do not get cold and clammy as they did before. Indeed, this Orange Root treatment is a blessing in disguise, and I heartily recommend it to all weak, nervous and exhausted women thru-out the country." City Baseball League Clubs Paired Off For Opening Battles

Turk Nash and K.T.K. 'At Home'

Newell, Madison Their Foes; Wellsville Idle.

LAUGHLIN vs. Turk Nash. Madison Billiards vs. K. T. K. Wellsville idle.

That's the schedule for the opening games of the City Industrial Baseball league's 1929 campaign, billed for Saturday, May 4.

The pairings were made from "the hat," Turk Nash and K. T. K. drawing the initial home assignments. In the event that the diamond is laid out on time at Patterson Field, the Laughlin-Turk Nash scuffle will be the attraction there with the other tilt, between the Billiards and K. T. K., slated for Columbian park.

Arrangements for the league opening will be completed and other plans of the circuit for the season will be discussed at a final session of team managers next Wednesday night.

From all indications, Curly Evans, the New Cumberland pitcher who flung the Homer Laughlin club into a pennant last season, will be out of the league altogether this season. Although a majority of the managers would prefer to see Evans in the league, a ruling, designed primarily to bar imported players in accordance with the league's desire to encourage the home players as much as possible, unfortunately includes Evans.

This ruling, by the way, barred both of Wellsville's pitchers, Huffman and Easton, and left the down river club without the least semblance of a hurling staff. It was proposed that Evans be shunted to Wellsville, but to this Manager Joe Dickey of Newell objected. Dickey insisted that he was Newell's property and that if he was going to play, he should play with Newell.

Laughlin has Dignan, one of the leading twirlers and a handy man with the bat last year, as well as one or two other prospects.

League managers felt the West Virginia Potters were very well fortified in pitching strength.

No permission was granted Manager Roy Nicholson of Wellsville to get Huffman, the right hander, if he so desired, as a nucleus for his twirling staff.

BOSS CONSUMES 29 GOLF BALLS

PITTSFIELD, Mass., April 20.—"Quick Watson No, not the needle—the scalpel."

The mystery of the missing golf balls that brought woe to many a duffer on the Taconic club fairways has been solved.

When a Jersey cow, owned by Rev. Dr. John H. Denison of Santa Barbara, Calif., was butchered here, twenty-nine golf balls were found in her stomach. The cow had grazed in a pasture adjoining the link.

The mysterious disappearance of balls puzzled golfers until the cow was butchered.

Club members who attended the autopsy were unable to identify any of their property.

Yankees Win From Mackmen

Errors Cost Old Jack Quinn Slab Duel With Hoyt.

By Les Conklin.

NEW YORK, April 20.—The heart of Cornelius McGillicuddy was a bit heavier and his venerable head dropped a bit lower as he led his Athletics against the Yankees here today, for the world's champions demonstrated yesterday that they still have the Indian sign on the Mackmen.

John Pius Quinn, the 44-year-old Ponce De Leon of the A's, lost a 2-to-1 decision to Waite Hoyt in a brilliant pitching duel only because Mule Haas, Mack's inexperienced center fielder, lost two flies in the red glare of the descending sun. Al Simmons out with injuries, probably would have caught both. And Connie, who has spent more than a million dollars and tried out some 400 rookies since 1914 in an effort to win just one more pennant, got off on the wrong foot again because of the ever-present jinx. Hoyt allowed only four hits in chalking up his 14th victory in a New York uniform. Quinn yielded five.

Another impressive performance was turned in by Ed Brandt of the Braves, who held Brooklyn to three hits and beat Dazzy Vance 5 to 1 after the Beaneaters had won the morning game by a 6-to-5 count.

Believe it or not, the Braves, regarded as the worst team in the majors, top the clubs of both leagues today with three wins and no losses.

Chick Hafey was the batting hero of the day, his two homers enabling the Cardinals to down Cincinnati, 9 to 4. Today Chick will peer through his new "specs" at the Chicago pitchers in the first game of a series that will test the new found batting power of the Cubs.

Carl Mays, veteran submarine pitcher, started his comeback campaign auspiciously as the Giants shelved the Phillies, 14 to 5. A fast fight between Hurst of the Phils and Harry Kelly of the Giants enlivened the fray.

The St. Louis Browns lost their first game of the season, 5 to 4, when Chalmers Cissell, one of the White Sox "bad boys," stole home in the ninth. Washington finally broke into the victory column by trouncing the Red Sox, 3 to 1, Marberry holding the Sox to five hits.

The Cleveland Indians made it three out of four by trimming the Detroit Tigers, 7 to 4, coming from behind in the last three innings. Not an Indian reached first base in the first five innings, but Sorrell weakened in the sixth and seventh and was replaced by Prudhomme.

ALLISON, HUNTER IN TENNIS FINAL

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., April 20.—Francis T. Hunter, America's second ranking tennis player, and Wilmer Allison, of Fort Worth, Texas, fifth in national ranking, met today in the final of the annual Mason and Dixon championship. Hunter already has two legs of the plaza bowl and can gain permanent possession of the trophy by winning today.

Hunter defeated John Van Ryn, of East Orange, N. J., in one semifinal by a score of 6-0, 6-3, 5-7, 8-6. In the other Allison scored a surprise by eliminating Johnny Hennessey of Indianapolis, 6-2, 1-6, 7-5, 6-3.

SCHWARTZ, DANO IN TAME SCRAP

SAN FRANCISCO, April 20.—Corporal Izzy Schwartz, flyweight champion, was held to a draw here last night by Pablo Dano, Filipino fighter. Both fighters were extremely cautious and an uninteresting bout was the result. Neither fighter was damaged in the slow ten rounds.

HAGEN MADE MUIRFIELD FAVORITE

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, April 20.—Walter Hagen, the man with the piping rock manner, has been installed an early favorite today in the English "books" on the open golf championship at Muirfield, which means that Hagen still has the British bluff by the sheer effrontery of his game, his name and his fame.

It's all a matter of results. Hagen hasn't won an American open championship since 1919 and all other theories and that magnificent stride of his as he stalks down the fairway can't change the simple fact that he is one of our best golfers; no more, no less. Whereas he has won three of the last seven British championships and so, regardless of Farrell, American open champion; Horton Smith and Mehlhorn, the winter circuit champions; Diegel, Canadian and P. G. A. champion; Macdonald Smith, Sarazen and their own entries, they bet Hagen against the field.

They haven't yet learned to love him in a large way. But he has more than their respect these several years. He has their awe.

OHIOAN IN FINAL OF MASON-DIXON

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., April 20.—Bob Stranahan, of Toledo, Ohio, today faced Jack Ryerson, of Cooperstown, N. Y., former Yale star, in the final of the annual Mason and Dixon golf tourney. Stranahan eliminated D. N. Tallman of Minneapolis, 4 and 3, and Ryerson defeated

Harold Block of Wheeling by a 4 and 2 count.

DEFIANCE WINS FROM TOLEDOANS

Maloney Is Winner In Third

Boston Pug Stops O'Kelly By Technical Kayo.

NEW YORK, April 20.—There was very little nourishment for those two Irishmen, Jimmy Maloney and Con O'Kelly, fighting in the Bronx last night, for O'Kelly was the victim of a technical K. O. in the third round and Maloney did not materially add to his bank account as the attendance was light.

Shamus and Con staged their third fight in the New York coliseum and were hardly warmed up before referee Tommy Sheridan ordered O'Kelly to his corner. Blood was streaming down the Dublin youth's cheek from a long lash on his left eyelid and in less than a minute of fighting in that round it was apparent that O'Kelly would be severely handicapped and possibly blinded.

As far as the fight went it was all Maloney. It appeared that the Boston strong boy was on his way to a K. O. for he was pressing his advantage over the wounded O'Kelly with savage energy in the third round. Con was rocking from solid smashes to the head and groping his way into clinches when the referee called a halt, fifty-two seconds after the bell started them off in the third.

This was the third meeting between this pair of Hibernian heavyweights. They fought a draw in Madison Square Garden last year and Maloney captured a decision in Boston two months ago.

In the semi-final Joey La Gray, welterweight king of the armories, lost the decision to Vincent Dundee, younger brother of the welterweight champion.

Jim Skidmore Ill In Hospital; Women's Club to Hold Benefit

Blue and White Backfield Star Was to Have Graduated This Spring.

Jimmy Skidmore, backfield star of East Liverpool high school football teams in recent years, whose speed has thrilled Blue and White followers on frequent occasions, is a patient in the City hospital.

Suffering from a somewhat indefinite ailment, apparently, Skidmore has been ill since a short time after the close of the football season. During that time he has been confined mostly to his bed. The long illness has left its mark.

A short time ago he was removed to the hospital.

For Jimmy's benefit, the women's unit of the East Liverpool Athletic association will hold a card party Wednesday, April 24, in the B. P. O. Elks' temple, West Fifth street.

Arrangements for the party are being directed by a committee headed by Mrs. Lawrence McVay and including Mrs. George Brian, Mrs. C. J. Zange, Mrs. W. W. Irwin, Misses Ruth Hedderston, June Morris and Esther Batey.

And he also has made a name for himself in basketball.

Jimmy was to have graduated this spring.

Fight Results

AT NEW YORK.—Jim Maloney, Boston heavyweight, scored technical knockout over Con O'Kelly, of Ireland (3).

AT BOSTON.—Andy Martin, Boston featherweight, outpointed Eddie Shea, Chicago (10).

AT DETROIT.—Al Singer, New York, won decision over Patsy Ruffalo, Detroit (10).

AT SAN FRANCISCO.—Corporal Izzy Schwartz, recognized as flyweight champion by the New York commission, drew with Pablo Dana, Filipino Boxer (10). Schwartz's title was not at stake.

A. A. U. GRUNTERS ON HOME STRETCH

NEW YORK, April 20.—Survivors of the field of 95 wrestlers in the National A. A. U. championship here will meet this afternoon and tonight in the semi-finals and finals. The stars of the preliminary bouts were Al Cornsweet, former captain of the Brown football and wrestling teams; George Campbell, Oklahoma who won the 116 pound title in 1925, and Sherwood Hauck, of the University of Idaho.

Amateur Tourney in Sebring.
SEBRING, O., April 20.—Plans are nearing completion for the amateur boxing tournament which will be held here Tuesday, April 30. Entry blanks are being distributed by Eddie's Sporting headquarters, 107 East Ohio avenue.

ST. XAVIER LICKS MINNESOTA NINE

CINCINNATI, O., April 20.—St. Xavier college baseball team handed the barnstorming university of Minnesota nine a 7-1 drubbing here yesterday, in a fast game featured by the hurling of Ambrose Puttman, Muskegon pitcher. The Gophers stopped here on their way home after successful tour of the east, and the defeat at the hands of the Saints was entirely unexpected.

Curtain was rung down last night on bowling in East Liverpool at the close of the Liberty alleys singles and doubles dackup tourney.

The prize winners are announced as follows:

Singles—Bill Manypenny, 659.
Second singles—Forbes Alcock, 523.
Doubles—John Schneidmiller and Wilson Lafferty, 1010.
Second doubles—Carr and Deltz, 953.

High single game—Manypenny, 224.
Two doubles teams rolled last night, as follows:

Kidd 152 120 120—392
Greene 198 159 126—483
Totals 350 279 246—875
Carr 187 141 195—523
Deltz 155 179 125—459
Totals 322 311 320—953

It is proposed to hold a special match between the Scotch and the Dutch bowlers of the Liberty league but Manager Alcock is kind of leary about it. He wonders who'll pay for it.

FIELDS IS O. K.'d IN CALIFORNIA

SAN FRANCISCO, April 20.—Jackie Fields of Los Angeles was today recognized as welterweight champion of the world by the California State Boxing commission. Fields, after his defeat of Jack Thompson in Chicago, was also declared champion by the National Boxing commission, which comprises 27 states. New York, however, still recognizes Dundee.

TEXAS GRAPPLER DEFEATS OHIOAN

CINCINNATI, O., April 20.—Hugh Nichols, Dallas, Tex., middleweight wrestling champion, defeated Ray Carpenter, Lancaster, O., last night, taking the last two falls. Carpenter won the first fall in 26 minutes and 20 seconds. The champion took the second in nine minutes and 30 seconds and the third in ten minutes and 25 seconds.

Forbidden Door

Story of Adventurous Youth, Mystery, Fortune and a Girl.

By Herman Landon

It happened about sixty years ago. The cabin that stood on this spot at that time was occupied by a trapper named Billings and his family. At the time there were two families living in the house, ten or twelve persons in all. About 1 o'clock on a certain day, while the two families were eating their midday meal, a terrific roar was suddenly heard. The occupants sprang up from the table just in time to see an avalanche of rocks, sand, snow and ice tumbling down the side of Old Blighty, heading straight for the cabin.

Julia shivered. "How dreadful!"

"They had only a few moments to decide what to do," Mr. Curry went on, "and they decided to run for their lives. You can see what their chances were."

With his wooden cigar Mr. Curry indicated the hills rising steeply on all sides, forming a tiny hollow, barely half a mile in either direction, at the bottom.

"They were caught like mice in a trap. As you see, there are only two narrow openings. The men thought there was a chance of escape in the opposite direction from the slide was coming. With the smaller children in their arms, the grown members of the two families started running for their lives. But Old Blighty fooled them. Only two escaped. The others—"

He paused as a shudder shook the slight figure at his side.

"And Blighty was in an ironic mood that day," he went on after a moment. "Through a freak of nature or a whim of the elements, the avalanche parted just before it struck the cabin. The little structure was scarcely touched. If the two families had remained inside, it is probable all would have escaped. The cabin remained standing for years afterward."

Julia turned away from the slab and looked up at Old Blighty. She wound her filmy wrap more tightly about her shoulders.

The clouds were melting together in oblong formations, forming black streamers as a background for the scarlet afterglow. Shadows were creeping athwart the little hollow. The wind, moody and chill, blew with a stronger sweep. Gradually the clouds took on a heavy, scowling look.

"I can almost see the face now," said Julia, regarding the curious mold of the peak that towered high and threatening above the diminutive valley.

"You could see it even more clearly if Old Blighty would thaw the snow out of his whiskers," Mr. Curry suggested.

"But I can see his face quite plainly," Julia insisted. "The longer I look at him the more lifelike he becomes. He looks positively fierce, just as if he were planning something wicked."

Mr. Curry scanned the darkening range. "I believe we are going to have more rain. Yes, Old Blighty does look as if he were up to some sort of deviltry. I believe dinner must be ready, Mrs. Martenet. Shall we go in?"

Julia cast another glance at the scowling visage of Old Blighty, which was throwing an ever lengthening shadow over the valley. "Yes"—her voice shook a little—"let's go in."

After dinner, served faultlessly by Mrs. Martenet's servants, Mr. Curry yielded to a strong attraction and, leaving the other guests assembled around an immense log fire in the drawing room, turned toward the library. In the hall he almost ran into the lanky figure of the caretaker, John, with so many strange people about, looked somewhat helpless and out of place.

"How is Miss Lane?" asked Curry.

"Just about the same, Doc Speck tells me. Mrs. Martenet's maid is looking after her. The doc thinks he'd better stick around till morning."

"It may be a good idea. Has Miss Lane said anything?"

"Kate—that's the maid—tells me she's raving off and on."

"Raving, eh? About anything in particular?"

"Yes, sir. She talks a lot about the face and the iron door, but mostly about the face. Now and then she says something about a letter and a taxicab. I don't get that part a-tall."

"Nor I," said Mr. Curry thoughtfully. "Well, the sooner she comes out of it, the sooner we shall know what—what we shall know. Haven't seen any more foot-prints—eh, John?"

"No, sir—nor I don't expect to see any more—not that kind, anyhow."

"Why not, John?"

"Just because," said the caretaker mysteriously, then stood listening to the rising whine of the wind outside the house. "Guess we're in for some more rain. Never saw so much rain as there's been the last month, sir. I don't like the looks of it."

"It makes things rather dreary, doesn't it?"

"It isn't that, sir. Did you happen to take a look at Old Blighty about sundown?"

"Now, John," and Mr. Curry chuckled reassuringly. "Don't start imagining things. You will have me thinking you imagined the face you tell me you saw last night."

"Miss Lane saw it, too," declared John doggedly. "So she did," admitted Mr. Curry with a frown.

He left the uneasy caretaker and walked into the library, where a heap of oak logs was crackling lustily in the fireplace. Seeing the room was unoccupied, he stepped into the short hall at one side and glanced up at Old Blighty's clock. It was ticking as unconcernedly as if nothing had ever disturbed its serene rhythm.

In a baffled way he gazed down the hall. The face? Shaking his head, he advanced and brought up against the iron door. It had opened last night, for the first time, as far as he knew, in seventy years. It had opened from the inside, John had told him. Who had opened it and what?

A little shudder shook Mr. Curry as he stood contemplating the forbidden door. It was not locked, for it had been Old Blighty's opinion that no lock ever made could keep out a person determined to get in. Instead there was a system of bolts which though it could be mastered by any one with a little patience and ingenuity, was sufficient to stop casual prowlers. Moreover, the seal of Old Blighty's injunction was on the door, and for the Martenets that was enough. It was enough for Mr. Curry, too, a trust sacred and inviolable Old Blighty had been his friend, and that meant even more than official obligations.

Yet he was worried. He did not like the things John had told him about—the mysterious lady visitor, the foot-prints on the floor, the opening of the iron door, the glimpse of a face. A chain of perplexing events seemed to be closing in around Old Blighty's secret, jeopardizing the bulwarks behind which the dead man had sheltered it. Mr. Curry felt it his plain duty to do something, yet what could he do?

He pondered the question as he stood in the short hall, illuminated only by a small electric light in the ceiling. Though otherwise a man of hard sense, the iron door was not just a door to him. Something of his dead friend's unfathomable personality seemed to adhere to it, giving it an aspect that was mystical and bewildering. Some one dwelt behind that formidable portal. He had long suspected it, and last night's happenings confirmed this belief. Who?

His wondering gaze was still fixed on the door. What would he discover if it should suddenly swing open? What would he see if, yielding to a temptation that was growing stronger every moment, he should dislodge the bolts and pull the door open?

He shook his head as if to dismiss a tantalizing thought. Old Blighty had been his friend. Friendship, even more than the ethics of his official position, demanded that he keep hands off. It would be a sort of sacrilege to pry behind the barrier. Old Blighty's secret must be kept inviolate—until the clock should cease running, at any rate. After that—

The thread of his thoughts snapped. From his slack lips fell the wooden cigar. His brain whirled, then seemed to stand suddenly still. A great over-whelming chill shook his body. Out of eyes that grew wider and wider he stared in stupefaction at the iron door.

A tap sounded sharply. Then another—a third—a fourth—a fifth. A pause that was like a stunted eternity, and then another series of taps, this time coming closer together.

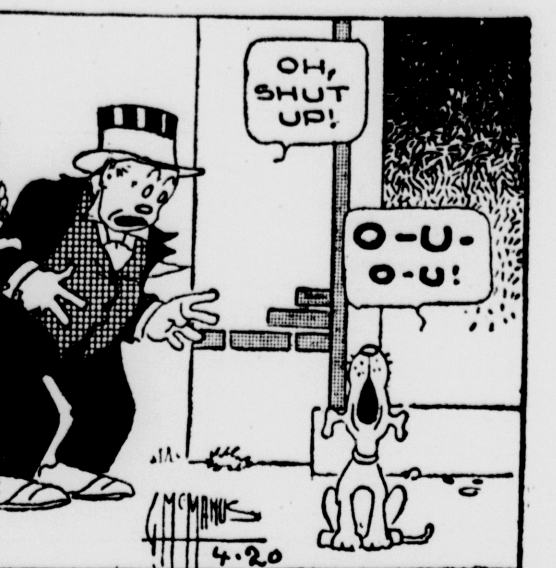

A long, choking groan broke from Mr. Curry's lips. Some one was hammering on the door—hammering from the inside!
